Specialty Foods are Perfect Holiday Gifts

By Jennifer Badger
Executive Director
SC Specialty Food Association

This time of year family and friends gather in cozy homes around the dinner table, Christmas tree, and fireplaces to enjoy each other's company, gifts, and (best of all) food. Hanukkah, Christmas, and New Year's Eve are some of the year's most festive celebrations with mouth-watering appetizers, suppers of country baked ham, sweet treats, and warm drinks. Celebrate this holiday season with South Carolina specialty foods. Here are some ways to incorporate local Certified SC Products into your holiday celebrations.

- Hostess gifts: If your hostess insists on preparing the entire holiday meal, it is thoughtful to bring a small gift to say "thank you" for all her hard work. The Carolina Honey Bee Company produces local, 100 percent natural organic raw honey as well as indulgent beeswax beauty products like soap and lip balm. Adams Apple Eatables also makes an Apple Pie Jam that pairs well with their toast or biscuits for a relaxing breakfast the morning following your event.

- Stocking stuffers: Specialty foods are great unexpected stocking stuffers for those with food favorites. For the hot sauce fanatic in your life, Palmetto Pepper Potions has four varieties to choose from; for the health nut, Super Nola Natural boasts Greenville-made granola; and for that classy lady, Wine Sticks from the Sweetery are a fun way for her to enjoy her next glass.

- Hard-to-buy-for family members: We all have that one person in our lives who is tough to buy for, or maybe you're purchasing a gift for a friend and you aren't sure what to buy. Food is always a safe bet; it's a gift that will be enjoyed. Iron Brew Coffee has its own line of K-cups for the Keurig coffee maker, which pairs beautifully with a new Christmas coffee mug. Olde Colony Bakery has a fun history lesson that accompanies their original Charleston Benne Wafers.

- Prepared foods: Cooking large meals can become burdensome when you're also trying to shop for gifts, work, pick up kids, and clean the house. When you're crunched for time there are a number of prepared foods that can reduce stress so you can focus on the main dish. Blue Moon Specialty Foods has a delicious Blue Cheese Macaroni as a side, plus four pimento cheese varieties perfect as appetizers with crackers or celery. JuJu's Gourmet Sweet Potato Biscuits are also a superb time saver – just warm them in the oven when you're ready to eat.

- Adapting a family recipe: If you're feeling adventurous this season, try spicing up old family recipes with Charleston Spice Company blends, Moore Himalayan Salt, or Chef Belinda Spices.

These gourmet spices will liven up any dish while keeping the integrity of Grandma's recipe.

- Guest favors: Want to send your guests home with something special? Sweet treats like Molly and Me Pecans, Blue Flour Bakery cookies, or Faithful Foods fudge and praline pecans are crowd pleasers. Prewrapped and ready to go, these are perfect for snacking during the drive home.

Specialty foods are fun, easy, cost-effective gifts for your friends and loved ones this holiday season. For other holiday ideas, tasting events, recipes, and more be sure to check out our website at scsfa.org or find us on Facebook as SCSFA (the South Carolina Specialty Food Association). Happy holidays!

Certified SC for the Holidays

Wow, it can't be this close to Christmas! Ready or not, the holidays are here. It seems like each year flies by faster than the one before. Wonder if age has a little to do with that?

Holidays are a time for family and traditions, many centered around the dinner table. And, of course, who can forget all the gifts! I've got good news; you don't have to search any further than Certified SC to find the perfect gift and the tastiest ingredients for holiday gatherings.

The holidays are a great time to support local farmers and artisans, and I hope you will make it a point to buy Certified SC this season and incorporate some new recipes for your holiday table and get-togethers. Throughout the holiday season, you'll find inspired treats featuring the freshest, tastiest South Carolina products available on our Facebook and Instagram pages.

SCDA works hard to help promote great SC grown products. Any chance to remind consumers about buying Certified SC Grown creates the opportunity to help the local economy. A study done a few years back found that every dollar spent on buying local agriculture products generates $1.66 in South Carolina's economy. The same study indicated that consumers were willing to pay about 25 percent more for products they know

Food Showcased at 2017 AgriBiz Expo

FLORENCE--The fifth annual SC AgriBiz & Farm Expo offers opportunities to experience tasty foods at many of the events over the two-day period. The expo will be held Jan. 11-12, 2017 at the Florence Civic Center.

Breakfast will begin with hot donuts and pastries, along with steaming cups of hot coffee at the Food Truck Rodeo. Shortly thereafter, patrons' noses will be tickled by the smell of sizzling smoked barbecue, hot off the grill from the SC Certified Food Truck, "It's a Matter of Taste." Along with other lunch choices, several popular food trucks will provide a variety of options for food and beverages.

The exceptional Taste of South Carolina will begin at 6:30 p.m. on Jan. 11. The state's new Chef Ambassadors will showcase the finest and freshest foods produced in South Carolina. Many local commodity organizations and specialty producers will share their hand-selected food items, which the chefs will use to create tantalizing and unique dishes. Tickets are limited but can be ordered from the website.

On Jan. 12, visitors can connect with the SC Commissioner of Agriculture at the 8 a.m. Commissioner's Breakfast. Proceeds from this event support the Commissioner's School of Agriculture, a week-long educational opportunity held each summer at Clemson University. It provides high school students with the opportunity to experience many facets of agriculture in a hands-on learning environment. At the breakfast, Commissioner Hugh Weathers will provide highlights of the 2016 school and will give an outlook on agriculture for 2017.

With more than 120 exhibitors, the Expo will offer many opportunities for people to interact with the latest in agricultural methods and technology. Visit the website at: scagribizexpo.com for more information.

are local. Perhaps your gift recipients will be 25 percent more appreciative if they know you're supporting our farmers.

We currently have more than 1800 Certified SC members across the state – the group is made up of specialty foods, beef producers, pork producers and many vegetable growers. You can find the Certified SC Grown logo in more than 500 grocery and retail stores across the state. Working with our partners, we've tried to make it easy for you to select locally grown foods where you normally shop.

When it comes to specialty foods – there are more than 160 members in the SC Specialty Foods Association. They have everything from benne wafers and BBQ sauce to pimento cheese and ice cream. Specialty foods make outstanding Christmas gifts for those with even the most discerning of tastes. You can find a full listing of those specialty foods on our website, www.agriculture.sc.gov.

Certified SC even has your holiday décor covered. There are more than 40 tree farms around the state growing popular varieties of Christmas trees. Start a new tradition this year and visit one near you to choose and cut the perfect tree for your home. If you can't make it out to a farm, come to the State Farmers Market for everything from trees to garland to wreaths. Also in this issue, you'll find a listing of FFA chapters in South Carolina selling poinsettias. Consider purchasing one to beautify your home while supporting local FFA students.

I want to wish everyone a blessed Christmas and a joyful holiday season. And this year, I hope you'll be even a little more aware of and thankful for farmers who toil year round to provide food for families across America, and around the world.

Robert Bollier, who teaches agriscience at Lexington Technology Center, oversees the poinsettia project for the school's FFA chapter.

FFA Chapters Sell Poinsettias for Christmas

By Marsha Hewitt
Editor
SC Market Bulletin

Each year a number of the state's FFA chapters sell poinsettias. Pelion High School has been raising and selling the traditional Christmas plants for about 35 years.

Tommy Harmon, who teaches horticulture there, said he needed to find a crop to grow in the fall that could be used as a fund-raiser. When he first started teaching, another ag teacher was growing poinsettias, and he decided to follow suit. Now several FFA chapters around the state grow poinsettias.

Harmon gets rooted cuttings in early August and the students diligently care for them until the plants are ready for sale in December. They are grown in the school's greenhouse.

Poinsettias are temperamental crops, with specific needs for light, temperature and moisture, Harmon said. "We're growing a tropical plant in a greenhouse. Everything has to be correct. They are not the easiest thing to grow." The right amount of fertilizer, plus disease and insect control, are essential.

About 100 students are involved in the project at Pelion. Not only do they take care of the plants on a daily basis, they are encouraged to spread the word about the sale, and they help load the plants when they are sold.

Approximately 400 poinsettias will be for sale at Pelion High School beginning Dec. 1, on a first-come, first serve basis, Harmon said. The plants are priced from $10 to $20, depending on size. They usually sell out within a couple of weeks. The proceeds from the sales go directly into FFA activities. Each chapter sets its own prices for the plants.

The FFA chapter at Lexington Technology Center has 500 poinsettias, but they will probably be sold out within a couple of days, according to FFA advisor Robert Bollier.

The school has a good many commercial orders each year, most of them repeat customers. Those orders are the first to go, then the rest are sold to the public.

But their first client is The Governor's Mansion, which receives poinsettias early in the season. "We donate to them every year," Bollier said. Students made the delivery to the mansion on Nov. 28.

The technology center has 57 FFA members this year, and they are all involved in the poinsettia project. "These plants can be very finicky," Bollier said. "I drive up every day to check on them, and the kids come over the weekend." The students make bows and adorn the plants with wrapping paper.

Lexington Technology Center is located at 2421 Augusta Hwy. in Lexington. Phone 803-821-3032 to see if any of the plants are still available after Dec. 1.

Christmas Saturdays at the Market

It's time again for "Christmas Saturdays at the Market." The Greenville State Farmers Market will be hosting its annual Christmas festival the first three Saturdays in December (Dec. 3, 10 & 17).

The Market will come alive with the sounds and smells of Christmas. Beautiful trees, wreaths, greenery and special gift items will be available along with regular seasonal products. So be sure to come out and find that special Christmas decoration and possibly a unique gift idea to welcome in the Christmas season.

The Market is located at 1354 Rutherford Road in Greenville and can be reached by phone at 864-244-4023.
